

Mitch Sowden – Wolfpack Information Risk

Mitch is an information management professional offering 20 years of regional and global experience specialising in information risk management and privacy programmes. He has had success directing projects beyond technology, including 10 plus years in IT governance, (regulatory compliance and 3 plus years in the legal compliance realm). His current professional interests include data protection and security architecture where he advocates a risk-based and appropriate response to compliance requirements.

Mitch will be discussing compliance mind-mapping and facilitating